Session musician, drummer Adam Gormley reveals exciting new project:

“AG’s Odyssey”

Adam Gormley’s role as a session drummer sees him collaborating with fellow students at Riverside Music College on rehearsals for end of term gigs, live performance sessions, session musician classes and personal practice for his first instrument studies to produce an impressive portfolio of work. This project provides highlights from year 1 and year 2 of his graded unit project at Riverside documenting his journey so far and highlighting his project management skills.

This second-year project sees him building on the skills and knowledge he obtained during his graded unit project from year 1 of his studies.

Taking part in rehearsals and self-practice has provided him with a wealth of material to build a successful portfolio of work. He has documented and recorded his body of work as evidence for his project. He worked with fellow musicians as part of a band, promoting his excellent communication and drumming skills. He has marketed and promoted his services on social media sites by uploading videos to Instagram, YouTube and TikTok. These sites showcase recordings of his drumming talent in the genres of pop, rock, funk, and metal. Examples are taken from technical exercises from his first instrument study, live performance rehearsals and excerpts from recent end of term college gigs in December 23 and March 24. Check them out! He has a presence on Soundcloud promoting examples of his portfolio sound, Bandcamp and his own website where you will find links to all of his social media sites. He is a member of the Musicians Union ensuring that he has the necessary insurances to allow him to work. He currently advertises his services as a session drummer in four rehearsal studios in the city , these being The Audio Lounge, Berkeley 2, Carlton Studios and Headhunters. He has also joined various session musician agencies to advertise his services as a session musician, these being Airgigs, Soundbetter and Sonicbids.

Finally, he has shared exciting news that he will be having a launch event online on his YouTube channel on Friday 26th April 2024 at 7pm to showcase all of his recent work as a session musician and his collaborations with fellow students. You won't want to miss it!
